Yes, however we are adapting to provide service in new ways to our membership. The Startup Ladies host 2-4 public events per month. We are making plans to operate virtually through the end of 2020 in an effort to keep our 200+ members (and growing) safe. Our decision about when to return to regular operations will NOT be based on the opinion of political figures. Our decision will be based on science and the advise from medical leaders like Dr. Anthony Fauci.

Do you anticipate any service limitations as you plan to resume more normal operations? If yes, please explain.

Yes, the main service limitations we see are around the volume of customers we can service, and not so much the type of services we can offer. Our lobbies have limited space, and so with social distancing the number of physical customers we can have in the building is limited. This is compounded by the influx of customer inquiries and transactions we’re handling due to the various stimulus activities such as Payroll Protection Program and the stimulus payments.

Do you anticipate any service limitations as you plan to resume more normal operations? If yes, please explain.

Yes, our employees typically work on site at customer locations, especially with Manufacturing sites as part of Smart Factory initiatives. We expect our onsite work to be limited during the initial ramping up of operations, which can limit effectiveness as well as potentially impact business development opportunities.

No, Cornerstone Information Systems is a travel technology company, and a good portion of our staff was already working remotely when the COVID-19 crisis struck. We are able to service our customers, which span the globe, largely remotely. Our challenges and need for aid stem from the standstill in travel - we need travel to rebound, especially airline travel, domestic and international.

Yes, a lot of travel to customer sites... ensuring compliance with local situations, travel advisories, and overall consistent judgement with safety as top of mind. This will be difficult to balance while we also have people on the bench we are attempting to keep employed with reduced revenue.

Do you anticipate any service limitations as you plan to resume more normal operations? If yes, please explain.

Yes. Although we will be able to provide our services to clients, we are experiencing higher costs to provide the services. This comes from the purchase of PPE, screening, tracking for all contact with clients, and time allocated to do work via a scheduled Video call. We also anticipate continued supply chain challenges and cash flow as clients pay late.

Yes, considering all aspects of what the new normal will look like. Representing over 3,000 entrepreneur members, co-working sites will play a key role in recoveries in dozens of communities throughout the state. We would like to see the state commit to supporting the Indiana Coworking Passport and member locations to supercharge innovation-driven entrepreneurship statewide.
